REACHING THE SPOT.

It Can Be Done, So Scores of Norway Citizens Say.

To cure an aching back, The pains of rheumatism, The tired-out feelings, You must reach the spot—get at the cause.

In most cases 'tis the kidneys, Doan's Kidney Pills are for the kidneys.

Mrs. Oscar H. Trimback living on High street, South Paris, Me., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of rheumatism after I had treated with doctors for months. I was confined to my bed and was told that I would not be able to walk again. However, I am now able to get around without difficulty and for several months have been enjoying good health. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me after everything else failed, and I really think they saved my life. More proof of the merits of this remedy can be had by calling at F. A. Shurtleff & Co.'s drug store."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

The Honeysuckle Vine.

Written for the Advertiser.

When the honeysuckle breathes her benediction On the peaceful, dewy air at twilight's close She banishes all sorrow and affliction.

And whispers of the great Comforter's power; She whispers of the source of all her sweetness, Teaches the weary heart at dewy eve Of the grandeur, and the beauty and completeness.

Of Mother Earth, and questions why we grieve, The passing zephyrs, idle, happy vagrants, Are parasites of her bounty, all her fragrances, They scatter 'mongst the least of these; Not hers the heart to hoard her richest blessings.

With-holding from her less favored ones her store, But joyously she shares her wealth, confessing Whoso gives is ever sure of having more.

When twilight's curtains drape the glowing West, And gratitude and love have brought replete-ness From the empty, hungry longing in my breast, And may I profit by the loving kindness Of the little, common, fragrant, honey vine, And what'er mistakes I make in human blindness, May I ever share the best of what is mine.

NEW SCALP SPRAYER.

With It Tonics Can Be Put on Head Without Spilling Them.

People who have used hair and scalp tonics to any extent and experienced the difficulty in saturating the hair without saturating the clothing and carpet as well will appreciate the scalp sprayer designed by a New York man.

This device works on the principle of an atomizer. It consists of a base to which a ring is attached. In this ring is set a compressible rubber bulb, and leading from the bulb is a tube the length of which is adapted to fit the contour of the head and which is equipped with perforations.

By placing this tube in the hair and pressing the bulb the tonic or perfume, or whatever the contents may be, is sprayed through the hair and over the scalp in such a way as to reach every point. Nor is there the muss attached to the old method of shaking an inverted bottle over the head, hitting the mark occasionally and decorating the wall paper at other times; also there is a saving in tonic, and the job is more complete.

Corsets in Gowns.

Paris is sending many of its new gowns to us with corsets made in them. For the tall, slim girl this is really just the touch to give the real empire effect. These gowns are well holding their own and from present indications will continue to do so for quite a time to come.

For a woman with the slightest inclination to stoutness this boning of the skirt, no matter how much there is of it, is not sufficient harness. Her hips must be held down. But the slender girl can wear the boning with the greatest ease and satisfaction.

They are regular corsets, and the frock is made to their shape. They are laced after the gown is on.

On each side of the back for a space of two or three inches corset and gown are left free of each other. After the lacing has been done the frock is hooked up.

If the opening happens to be at one side of the back, so many things have it at present, it simply means that the two must be left free of each other a few inches more on one side.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the relatives and friends; also the members of Kezar Lake Grange, North Lovell, the Rev. Mr. Card, and all who so kindly assisted us in every way during our late bereavement, and for the many beautiful floral offerings.

Mrs. G. M. HARRIMAN, Mrs. and Mrs. F. L. HARRIMAN, GUY AND EDNA HARRIMAN.

NORTH LOVELL.

George M. Harriman died at his home in North Lovell, Thursday, June 24. He had suffered from paralysis about a year though he was able to be about. He was born in Lovell, March 6, 1844, his parents being John and Alice (McDaniel) Harriman. He attended school there and lived in Lovell the most of his days.

Mr. Harriman followed the business of a farmer. In politics he was a Democrat.

He was a charter member of the Christian church; a charter member of Park-er Post, Lovell Center; a charter member of Kezar Lake Grange, North Lovell, and a man prominent in the business affairs of the place in which he lived. One by one the old soldiers are passing on.

He married Carrie M. Palmer in Lovell Nov. 4, 1868 and they leave one child, Fred L. Harriman, a carpenter of Norway.

Besides his immediate family he leaves many other relatives and friends. The funeral was from his late home June 27th, Rev. Mr. Card of Center Lovell being the attending clergyman.

It was largely the attending clergyman who had known him. The floral offerings were beautiful:

Mrs. George Harriman—Pillow of roses with word Husband.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Harriman, children—Wreath of roses with word Father.

Guy E. and Edna L. Harriman, grandchildren—Six white pinks.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. P. Kimball, Norway—Carnation pinks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Currier, Norway—Bouquet of carnation pinks.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Newkirk, Boston—Bouquet of carnation pinks.

Alma Harriman, Norway—Carnation pinks.

Grange—Wreath with F. of H. M. and Mrs. Lyman Hilton—Cut flowers.

Mrs. Sylvester Adams—Roses and cut flowers.

Edwin and Fred Allen—Roses and cut flowers.

Mrs. Lewis McAllister—Yellow roses.

Mrs. Flora McKen—Roses.

Mrs. Joseph Parker—Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronello Andrews—Cut flowers.

W. A. Allen—Cut flowers.

Mrs. Angus McKen—Potted plants.

Mrs. Melvin Allen—Cut flowers.

Mrs. Harry McKen—Cut flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Garcelon—Carnation pinks.

Mr. and Mrs. Forley McAllister—White roses.

Wild strawberries are plenty in this vicinity.

Mrs. Emma Wilson was at home from Norway last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Davey and Ted Davey have returned to New Jersey.

George Wilson, who has been working in Sweden, has visited his son, C. F. Wilson.

Mrs. Carrie Harriman and son Fred and family have gone to their home in Norway for a few days' stay.

NORTHWEST BETHEL.

Mrs. Fred Chapman has been visiting in Portland.

Mrs. Oliver Gould and children of Portland have been visiting at H. N. Upton's.

Our term of district school closed Friday. Miss Hapgood is a successful teacher.

Mrs. Dana Rand and three children of Mechanic Falls have been visiting her father, Asa Stowell.

Mrs. E. S. Porter and Mrs. E. W. Starbird of Portland have been visiting their cousin, Mrs. Mary Wilson.

Orville Kilgore is now at work for I. H. Wilson. Leroy Lane works for him some days when he can be spared at home.

Mrs. Villa Small, who formerly lived here, returned from Shelburne to the home which her father, A. Mason, purchased recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Verrill who have been away from Bethel ten years, have been visiting their old neighbors here and called at Forest home.

NORTHWEST ALBANY.

O. W. Rolfe was in Bethel, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Mills have been the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Irving Hutchinson.

Mills & Rolfe are sawing long lumber.

E. W. Rolfe is hauling lumber to West Bethel for D. Edwards.

D. Edwards, wife and daughter, and a lady friend have been the guests of Mrs. Edwards' uncle, C. E. Mills.

Carlton L. Mills has finished work in Waterford, and is stopping with his sister, Mrs. Irving Hutchinson.

H. O. Rolfe, wife and daughter of East Waterford, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rolfe, also G. M. Rolfe and family and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Rolfe, Sunday.

RAINY DAY WISDOM.

The girl who chooses the rainy day to overhaul all her belongings at once may wish she had not been so energetic if the sun fools her by coming out unexpectedly.

The girl who selects the rainy day to go in sloppy attire is a depressing sight for her family and generally gets fooled in her belief that "no one will call such a day."

Don't choose the rainy day to be so gloomy that crape on a door seems cheerful in comparison. If you must get low in your mind, when the sun shines is more opportune.

If you ever keep sweet, do so in a downpour. To scowl or frown one's in-offensive family when shut in the house by bad weather is as mean as cornering a woman to learn her age.

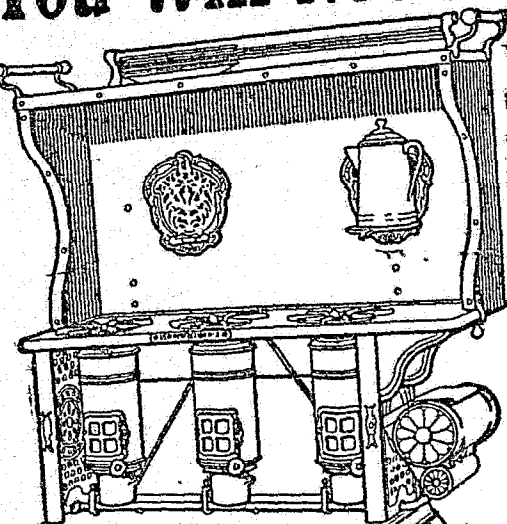

Instead of growling at the "heasty day," try the soothing power of keeping busy. There is nothing like a rainy day to repair the ravages of one's wardrobe or to catch up in back letters.

The girl who cultivates catlike hatred of getting wet loses a big opportunity to improve her complexion. A walk in the rain is not only an antidote for blues, but is a wonderful tonic to the skin.

Don't look out the window every five minutes for sight of the sun nor bore your family with the useless whine, "I wish it would clear." The sun never shows for wishing, and clouds are not lightened by thunderclouds within.

You Will Need an Oil Stove

When warm days and the kitchen fire make cooking a burden—then is the time to try a New Perfection Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove. Marvelous how this stove does away with kitchen discomforts—how cool it keeps the room in comparison with conditions when the coal fire was burning. The is the only oil stove built with a CABINET TOP for holding plates and keeping food hot after cooking. Also has useful drop shelves on which to stand the coffee pot or teapot after removing from burner. Fitted with two nicked racks for towels. A marvel of comfort, simplicity and convenience. Made in three sizes—with or without Cabinet Top. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

NEW PERFECTION Wick Blue Flame Oil Cook-Stove

Just such a The Rayo Lamp lamp as every one wants—hand-some enough for the parlor; strong enough for the kitchen, camp or cottage; bright enough for every occasion. If not with your dealer, write our nearest agency.

Riches in Alberta Wheat

"Get In" While You Can

The phenomenal agricultural and financial possibilities of winter wheat raising in "sunny" southern Alberta, the last best west in north-western Canada, is already widely known, and thousands of families are flocking into this agricultural El Dorado. Immense acreages, immensely rich soil, immensely great crops grown, harvested and marketed at marvellously little expense spells quick and lasting success for prompt activity there; the experience of men already on the spot PROVES this with net profits in winter wheat now ranging from $15 to $25 per acre.

...PUT A LITTLE IN...
...TAKE A LOT OUT...

From 30 to 250 per cent. on the money invested is not unusual in Alberta wheat raising. A farming syndicate just formed by men already devoting $500 acres of Alberta soil to "Alberta red," the record winter wheat of this section; now I am forming a second syndicate, each member to put in a little cash, to buy up another undeveloped Alberta section. If I hear from you BY RETURN MAIL I can "let you in" on this syndicate at bottom price; can make you a sharer in the most profitable land deal known in America for years. Write me TODAY for facts and figures which prove the genuine value of this proposition and its positive enhancement. A special handbooks' excursion is to start soon for Alberta; will you go? NORWAY AND VICINITY.

Reply to Mr. Buck's "Objections." Having read Mr. Buck's "Objections," in the ADVERTISER dated June 18, I was much surprised to see no word of reply in the following copy. It seems to me that the students of Norway High school must be sadly lacking in school spirit or they would openly resist the slurs cast upon their principal and their school.

Although I am a graduate of Fryeburg Academy and have nothing in common with N. H. S. my interest in all educational institutions is such that I wish to say I believe Principal Hathaway has been condemned unjustly.

Let us imagine Mr. Buck at the head of such a school. He might satisfy all the parents. I think it would be otherwise. I wonder if he ever stopped to think that people differ in opinion.

The class of 1909, P. A., went to Washington, several weeks ago. They believed, like Mr. Hathaway in "in the educational features of the trip," or as expressed by Mr. Buck, they believed in "tommyrot." Never having been able to find the exact meaning of this rather unpleasant sounding word Mr. Buck's article leads me to believe that it has to do with methods of advancing education. If this is true more "tommyrot" in the world would be an excellent thing.

Mrs. J. F. Swain visited in Bath last week, the guest of Mrs. G. F. Mitchell. The house at Maplecroft, Norway Center, is open for the season for summer boarders.

Advices have been received in Auburn, of the marriage of Harry A. Packard, formerly of Norway, to Bessie Lank of Dorchester, Mass. Mr. Packard is a newspaper man. He is now running an experimental farm in Freeport.

Idonia Cecilia Tabbs, a graduate of Colby college this year, received the Foster Memorial prize for excellence in Greek; also the Senior prize for excellence in English, women's department.

Inspector of High Schools.

The appointment of Harry M. Wheeler of South Paris as inspector of high schools is an office as was authorized by the last legislature. Mr. Wheeler was graduated from Harvard University in the class of 1908 and has been for three years principal of the Caribou high school.

The new high school law which took effect July 1, and makes several important changes in the conduct of secondary schools under its provisions high schools are divided into three classes, A, B and C according to the courses offered, the amount expended for instruction and the teachers employed. The amount of State aid given to towns is considerably increased, every town being entitled to reimbursement for the support of any class of high school to the limit of $500 instead of $250 as provided under the old law, while the towns will be required to meet a more rigid standard in respect to courses and instruction.

The provision of the three classes aims to meet the varied needs of different towns, permitting smaller towns to offer as much work as their resources make possible, without requiring that they have as many teachers and as much equipment as would be expected of larger schools. The standard of work, so far as extends in any school, will, however, be reasonably uniform for all schools.

This new high school law requires that all the secondary schools of the State be visited at least once in each year by a State inspector whose duty it will be to report on the work and progress of the schools and to bring suggestions and aid to the teachers and school committees.

Improving the Cow.

How shall we get a better cow? I fancy the cow says, get a better man to care for me. It should seem to some a very simple thing to feed a cow. And so it is if one simply throws the feed at her. That, however, is by no means all that is required.

A man wishing to become an engineer must learn the business. He must become familiar with the different parts of the mechanism, and know where the power comes from. He must see that the machine runs smoothly and that all parts work in harmony. A nut loose or some little thing wrong will lead perhaps to very serious results.

If a man would be an expert cheesemaker he cannot leave the business. Theory alone will not suffice, he must learn from actual work. There are many things that need to be known in order to meet different situations in the process of manufacture. Indeed practice gives one a sort of intuition. By practice one learns just what to do at different stages of the operation.

The dairy cow is more intricate than any machine. Man has invented many wonderful machines, but never anything that will make milk or take the place of the cow.

We cannot understand the exact processes of the cow's system. By careful study of her habits and characteristics, however, we can provide pretty practically that a man can gain the knowledge necessary to successfully care for the cow. We may talk about balanced rations and all that, but we get the cart before the horse. What we want is a balanced man to feed the ration, one who is interested enough in what he is doing to study the cow, and learn to know her likes and her dislikes, or as we might say, know cow language.

Every stockman knows that it takes a lot of knowledge and experience to get the best results from stock. This being true with other stock, it is much more applicable to the dairy cow, she being a harder worker than any other animal, and a greater food producer. It is reasonable to conclude then that there is a heavy tax upon her.

A WEDGWOOD ROOM.

This Shade Will Be Pretty in Spring Redecoration.

There is just a certain wedgwood blue that is exquisite with a putty colored wall. It is not well to use this combination in a north light, which needs the warmer colonial yellow, but it may be held in reserve for the room having a southern or western exposure, with its softer light.

The putty color is colder and less yellow than the colonial shades—as if a touch of gray had been dashed in—but there is still enough of the creamy tone left to blend with the wedgwood blue of the hangings.

These curtain goods may be found in such inexpensively materials as galathea, cotton poplin and Japanese crepe, all of which are more recent arrivals on the decorator's counter than denim and burlap.

Several pieces of old mahogany, a peacock screen and a bowl of polished brass are the needed touches in this chaste little room.

FRYEBURG.

Pike-Fitzgerald.

At high noon Wednesday in the Emanuel chapel of the St. Lukes Episcopal church in Portland, the wedding of Geraldine Fitzgerald, daughter of Mrs. Mabel E. Fitzgerald of Portland, to Mr. Asa Osgood Pike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Casius Warren Pike of Fryeburg, took place, Bishop Codman officiating.

Professor Brinkler was at the organ during the opening notes of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus to which the bridal party entered.

First came the ushers, both Bowdoin men, of which college the groom is a graduate. Following the ushers came the maid of honor, Kathleen Fitzgerald, sister of the bride. She wore a yellow lingerie gown and carried yellow daisies and wore a poke bonnet of yellow. The bridesmaids were Geneva Fitzgerald, sister of the bride, and Charlotte Pike, sister of the groom. Following the bridesmaids came the dainty bride accompanied by her uncle, Mr. John Warren Thurston of Island Pond, by whom she was given in marriage.

The bride's gown was of white satin with a train of Irish lace and she wore a long veil thrown back from the face, and held in place by a bandeau of white satin ribbon. She carried a white prayer book.

At the altar the bridegroom and his best man, a classmate at Bowdoin, met the bride.

At the close of the ceremony the party left the church to the strains of the Mendelssohn wedding march and proceeded to the home of the bride's mother where a wedding breakfast was served. The couple left on the afternoon train for their wedding journey, the bride traveling in a kenoard blue going away gown with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Pike are to reside in Sanford.

To Freshen Fur.

Fur coat collars and, in fact, any kind of fur neck dressing are apt to become soiled and altogether dull looking just at the back on account of rubbing on the hair.

It is a good plan to shake talcum powder into the collar when putting it away, shaking it out again when needed for wear the next time.

Done frequently, this will retain or restore the gloss to the fur, as the case may be, while for light furs, such as chinchilla and ermine, it will be cleansing.

Maine Pomological Society.

Annual Field Meeting at East Hebron.

The Maine State Pomological society on Wednesday, June 23, held its annual field meeting under the auspices of Hebron grange, East Hebron, in the orchard of Howard N. Merrill, where demonstration spraying, together with a tour of inspection, occupied the morning. This orchard yields from 400 to 600 barrels of fruit yearly.

W. J. Ricker, the secretary, who lives about five miles from East Hebron, by means of a heavy pair of horses harnessed to a sprayer, made a tour of the orchard where the demonstration was to take place.

Resting from this work he told the proper manner of making the spray. At his place they use four barrels in the manufacture of one is a stock solution of lime, in another a stock solution of blue vitriol. From each of these the diluted solution is made and run together into the spray pump, the five, 50 formula, being used.

Two men usually operate the machine, one covering each side the tree with an eight nozzle spray and one way with the motion of driving keeping to drive, the motion of driving keeping the spray in a proper state of agitation.

By this way of going through the orchard the trees on each side are sprayed on one side and the return through the next rows completes the duty thoroughly. One tank of gas will spray 600 gallons of water.

A few rib cocoon workers, not very common in Maine, were noted by Miss Patch, station entomologist, also a few specimens of the plum cucullio and leaf rollers. Along the roadside were found specimens of the tarnished plant bug that troubles aster and other flowering plants, also aphides, both of which may molest the apple trees.

Kerosene emulsion for the latter, which attacks roses, sweet and garden peas was recommended by Prof. Hitchins. F. H. Morse of Waterford, said: "I tried that for some of my trees dipping some of the grafts in the emulsion made according to the prescribed formula. The result was, I killed them," said Prof. Hitchins.

"I know it," was the reply, "but I wanted to see if you were telling the truth," and a smile passed around. Wild cherry near the hall was badly affected by the aphides and the professor secured several specimens, new and old growths.

"How far will this disease spread from the cherry trees," was asked. "As far as the wind will blow it," said the gentleman. "It is disseminated by the wind."

Castling about for a good sample to illustrate proper pruning, the eye lighted upon a large tree bearing natural fruit, with here and there a graft. The fruit was in large and small sized groups, but was evidently quite a slow job to thin the fruit of a tree of this size at this stage, but results would be much more satisfactory than to wait until the fruit was larger.

Nature was evidently planning to thin out a little by means of the canker, but it was hardly enough to perfect specimens that could be entered in competition in the Boston fruit show.

Taking a small cluster Prof. Hitchins remarked that he should leave one if he were thinning for an exhibit special. In a larger cluster that he held up, a gentleman said, "I'd leave four on that branch."

"I'd thin to two," was the professor's reply.

Well, they are the leading spirits, was the admission. Which brought out the fact that in nearly every group a part was better developed fruit than the rest; this should figure in the thinning process.

The East Hebron band at this juncture reminded the company that a fine dinner was in waiting at the grange hall to which all did ample justice. Seven tables were filled and sociability reigned. A band of 19 pieces furnished music.

William Craig of Auburn, is president of the association and called the meeting to order. He asked the public not to criticize the new apple law until it had been given a fair trial. He said: "It will be the best friend we have in Maine for it will place us all on proper basis."

Prof. E. S. Hitchins spoke: among other things he said. Some specimens of the apple louse have been seen today. In some cases where they have been numerous and were not sprayed, there were no pests for a later spray, although the trees blossomed freely. If you intend to raise first class fruit and mean business you must have business methods.

You have been in the orchard for four long days. I have asked you how many kinds of apples there were; I told him 200. Well, he said, I want one of all kinds, so I can take first premiums at the fairs. You must learn to choose the varieties you like and those adapted to the section; four are enough.

To renovate an old orchard, I'd get a saw and cut off all dead limbs. Doctor an old tree as you would a sick animal. Let it not prune new growth until it was dormant. Paint over wounds with a good creosote paint with copper sulphate and then with oil. Put a cutaway barrow upon the sod, cross cut and spread on dressing. Get rid of the tsetse fly, sheep or swine, or by letting the children gather the fruit. To prepare to set an orchard, use old corn ground; plow deep with the ordinary plow, then follow with the subsoil plow. Aim to set the trees deep.

To get rid of the plant louse, they break through the bark with a tube by means of which they puncture the stem or bark and suck the juices. We use a spray of kerosene emulsion. One-quarter of a pound of hard soap, preferably white oil, sliced and dissolved, take from the stove boiler and stir in two quarts of kerosene; stir until it becomes cream. This is a stock solution. If for apple or rose, take one part stock to ten parts water; if for plum or pear, take one part stock to five parts water. These are more tender. Another formula is to mix a quart of sour milk with two quarts of kerosene for the stock solution. The idea of either is to get a smooth emulsion as clear as water, but the tree tender. Throwing ashes upon the tree when wet is a good preventive for the pear scale.

Miss Patch was to speak upon the insects that she found during the morning ramble in the orchards and as they were few, fortunately for conditions, in the orchard, her talk was brief. Several aphides had shown evidence of the bud moth, there were a few leafrollers and the aphides were not numerous; the apple canker was not present to any extent nor was there much indication of caterpillars. The plum cucullio was Gentian Days.

The Most Beautiful of a Lovely Time of the Year.
Every wood-lover is aware of a certain subtle presence by which is known the advent of certain flowers. Emerson records of the gentian as especially remarkable, that he knew beforehand just when to seek the orchis or cypripedium. The power is not occult or peculiar; it is the result rather, of long observation which comes to be second nature. Almost unconsciously the observer notes the signs of the times the prevalent flowers of the day, the appearance of the foliage, the number, character and kinds of birds, the quality of the very air itself. Then something within him says, "Go forth; to-day thou wilt find the hepatica and blood-root."
There are certain days particularly consecrated to the fringed gentian—dies gentiane—holy days of floral year awaiting some Kable or Herbert to sing them. They are among the most beautiful of a lovely time of the year, calm, hazy, filled with the golden glow of the mature season. Dreamy days they are, when, by preference one reads the Idylls of the King, The Earthly Paradise or the Ghazals of Hafiz. It is not a time of activity, but reflection. We have now nothing to do with what Charles Lamb calls, "coursed energy." The world may revolve as it will, the gentian-lover now merely dreams in Nature's afternoon.
At this time the swamp ferns begin to glow with amber. No more the woodbine flings its triumphal banner of crimson over some sombre cedar. The green, translucent globes of the wild grape assume an amethystine hue; a belated cardinal flower still stands by the dark waters. Hung like the battle flags in St.
George's chapel—or are they personal pennons of the knights of that order?— the glabrous sumac displays its leaflets scarlet, yellow and green.
Now the migrating birds gather in congresses to discuss ways and means of transition. Everywhere the copse glows with stars that differ only in glory, as all are fair. They are the bright flowers of goldenrod and aster. In the meadows one finds the odorous ladies' tresses and in a way the grasses of Parnassus, with green-streaked white petals.
Fringed gentian is a meteoric plant.
One year we will find a meadow alive with its azure blossoms. The next season, it may be the same place, but yield not one. On a true gentian day one wanders heaven directed, for every year there are gentians somewhere, and every recurring autumn there are gentian days.

Provide Clean Water for Hogs.
Hogs should not be allowed to wallow in shallow, stagnant ponds. Although many such ponds are raised with the purpose of raising hogs, the water supply, they are disease-spreading centers and often responsible for losses that are attributed to cholera. No animal can be healthy, or produce meat of the best quality, when compelled to drink from a pond is the only available source of the water supply, it should be fenced so that neither cattle nor hogs can reach it, and the water drawn off into an outside trough. This can be done by laying from the dam a half-inch galvanized pipe, the end of which should be protected by a strainer, and the outlet provided with an automatic float valve, so that the trough will be kept full, no water wasted, and a fresh supply drawn as fast as the trough is emptied.
The whole arrangement can be made for less than $5. If there are trees in the pasture, a wallow is not needed.

Famous Ships in American History.

In the development as well as in the discovery of this country, certain historic ships have played important parts.
We have little authentic knowledge of the vessels that bore the Norsemen to our shores, nor do we know in what manner of ships Zeno or Verrazano came to pay us a call in those early days before we were prepared for guests, but we do know something of the caravels which brought that man of determination and courage from Palos across perilous seas, in the face of appalling vicissitudes, and rewarded him with the well-earned crown of the discoverer of a continent.
Others may have preceded Columbus, but their coming and going left no important impress upon the country. So fruitless were their voyages that they might now be entirely forgotten but for the omnipresent chroniclers who haunt the graveyard of history and endeavor to rob every man of achievement of the laurels he has won.
The fact that Columbus is generally credited with the discovery of America is sufficient to arouse the skepticism of many, but the truth is that the enterprising Genoese for the wealth of the Indias, America got in his path and he discovered us.
Whether or not Eric or others had set foot on American soil before Columbus landed upon the forbidding shores of San Salvador, the honor justly belonges to him, for in his wake came the following, which picked this continent out of its prehistoric oblivion and set the tide westward; the tide that dared the deep, braved the wilderness, founded settlements, suffered, endured and triumphed.
To the little fleet that bore Columbus and his mutinous crews to our shores belong the first honors among the noted ships of American history.
In this day of "Mauretians," "Adriatic" and "Kaiserin" with their 24,000 to 32,000 tonnage, it is hard to conceive or appreciate the quality of courage which man must have possessed in the 15th century that tempted them to venture on such an uncertain voyage and upon unknown seas.
The "Santa Maria," the flagship of Columbus' queer little fleet, was the only decked vessel in the trio. The "Pinta" held the speed record, and the "Nina" enjoyed no more remarkable distinction than that its lateen sails added picturesqueness to the fleet.
Stormy, indeed, was that long journey, though the elements had less to do with the anxiety of the commander than with the storms of mutiny among his faint-hearted sailors. In fact, history has hardly accorded due credit to the loyal Pinzon brothers, who undimchingly stood by their admiral and helped to suppress the outbreaks and control the treacherous crews.
The three little vessels, however, braved and conquered all the evils that threatened and beset them, and bore their great commander safe into that strange port, thereby recording his name on the imperishable pages of history as one of the greatest discoverers of all time. It is a pathetic thing that Columbus himself never appreciated the tremendous importance of his achievement. It is even more pathetic that his reward was shackles and the dungeon.
A life-sized fac simile of one of the historic caravels is now on exhibition at the Field Museum in Chicago, left as a part of the World's Fair exhibit.
The next epoch-making vessels that sought our shores were those that brought Capt. John Smith and the founders of Jamestown. The details of that historic expedition form a dark and tragic page in America's history, but not from which came great results. The details of that colony we have in such minute detail, though but little importance seems to attach to the sturdy ships which bore the bold adventurers across the ocean to our then inhospitable shores.
It was at this time (1607) that Henry Hudson was coasting along the rocky islands to the north. He discovered Spitzbergen and then returned to England. His second voyage, the following year, was to the north, but in the fall of 1609 the prow of his gallant and picturesque little "Half Moon," ("Haalee Maan") ploughed its way through the harbor and narrows that lay to the south of Manhattan Island and sailed up the commanding river that now bears Hudson's honored name.
Like Columbus, this storm-tossed agent of the Dutch East India company was in quest of the imaginary passage to the fabled Orient, and as he sailed north past the towering Palisades and through the Highlands, he fancied that he had at last discovered that long-sought passage that led direct to the El Dorado of his dreams.
The "Half Moon" sailed up beyond Hudson and its crew in the small boats probably went as far up as Albany.
They found the Indians remarkably interesting, while the red men, in turn regarded the boat as some fairy craft from the land of the supernatural, and its crew as strange beings from another world. This view of their mysterious visitors, however, did not interfere with the bartering of furs for baubles, while even the belief that these pale people did not prevent the treasury of the Indian from owing itself nor his love of conflict from engaging in an attack in which the blue river was stained with red.
Up to the coming of Hudson the explorers who landed north of the gulf had been content with coast settlements.
The explorations of Hudson—who came more as an explorer than a discoverer—attracted attention to the vast inland region then unknown, and in the wake of the "Half Moon" came those who sought the picturesque and fertile valleys of the Hudson and the Mohawk.
This led to the opening of the garden lands and gave to the development of the land beyond the Catskills a tremendous impetus.
It was 17 years after Hudson's coming that those brave souls of Leyden set sail from Delft-Haven in the "Mayflower," headed for Virginia and armed with a land grant. The winds of fate, however, changed the course of the vessel, and late in November, 1620, the "Mayflower" reached Cape Cod harbor.
A month later the Pilgrims made their permanent landing on Plymouth Rock in the biting teeth of a New England winter. Here they began their settlement and built their homes, and from this venturesome little band, now permanent as home "on a stern New England coast," sprang the sturdy yeomen that gave to the early colonies such rugged manhood and laid the corner stone of a strong young nation.

Then came a long formative period during which the spirit of independence flourished and the united nation was formed from the weak and struggling states.
With the birth of the 19th century came an era in which navigation was completely metamorphosed and the inventive genius of America triumphed in the application of steam to water craft.
In August, 1807, Robert Fulton successfully launched his steamboat, the "Clermont," on the Hudson river, and made the trip from New York to Albany. The natives, who flocked to the banks to see the puffing, chugging boat push itself against the current, thought it possessed of evil, but the far-sighted men of the age realized that this first trip of Fulton's little boat was an epoch-making event in the history of nations, though even the most sanguine did not dream of the developments along those lines that the century had in store.
The caravels were discoverers, the "Half Moon" was an explorer, and the "Clermont" was a revolutionist.
For ages beyond which the history of man runneth not, the navigation of the world had depended upon the paddle and the sail. Now these were to be relegated and the powerful sidewheel and the miraculous propeller were to revolutionize and popularize water travel.
The launching of the "Clermont" was one of the greatest events in the history of America and of the transportation of the world. Nations were bound closer together and the importance to commerce was incalculable. The "Cler-mont" made the first trip of the "Lusitania" of 1908.

These were the most famous ships in American history.
Possibly an even more important ship in the world's history was the "Savannah," the first steamship to cross an ocean. In 1819 this vessel sailed from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool, making the round trip in fine form. It is to be regretted that the pioneer in trans-Atlantic steamship navigation should meet such a fate as early befell the "Savannah." It was originally a sailing vessel, which some enterprising citizens of Savannah equipped with steam for ocean travel.
Soon after its maiden voyage reverses overwhelmed its owners, the vessel was sold, dismantled and reconverted into a sailboat, soon to be wrecked on the shores of Long Island where its frame now lies imbedded in the sands.

Sewing Room Should Be Light.
The sewing room, whose furnishing costs but little, is a necessity.
The essential for such a room is that it should be exceedingly light. Where there are two windows the sewing machine would naturally be placed at one, while the necessary working paraphernalia would be arranged about the other.
Bare painted floors are best. Footstools are really necessary, while the window curtains must be of the casement order, which can be drawn right back to the extreme sides to admit of
as much light as possible.
A good table, such as one would purchase for a kitchen or nursery, must be provided for cutting out, a couple of smaller tables being very useful for the sewers to spread their odds and ends upon.
A fairly broad window-shelf is also a desirable addition to a room of this description and on this window-shelf should rest a large, substantial, well-filled pin-cushion, while the sides of the window books would hold the regulation number of scissors, etc., required by workers.
The chairs should be low to be comfortable. Those with wooden arms are good to provide resting places for cottons and thimble.
A higher chair with a straight back will be required for the sewing machine.
There should be a mirror which can be easily moved to obtain the best light.

Games to Play on "Witches' Night."
One way to decide the all-important question of futures is with the French "serpentes," which are now sold in all large shops. These are tossed over the left shoulder exactly as we used to throw fruit peels. The letter formed by the serpentine when it falls is that of the husband or wife to be.
Amusing fortunes can be inclosed in envelopes and tied upon a chord stretched across the room. Each player is blindfolded and told to clip a fortune which he or she must accept as indicative of personal fate. There should be one set of fortunes for the men and another for the girls.
Another way to play this future game is to place on each plate of paper in a paper-mache apple, heaping up the "make believe" apples on a plate or in a basket and having each player make a selection.
A Halloween race is picturesque and easily arranged. For it, secure two or three little bags of colored confetti and pour the contents into a dish. Let each contestant dip up a spoonful of the pretty fragments and run with it three times around the room. The one who completes the race with the most confetti on the spoon will be the first of all those present to be married.
Another good frolic is the game of making chairs played like the old game of "Going to Jerusalem." Here each of the men present is given a bow of ribbon.
Each bow is different in color. Each young fellow attaches his ribbon to some certain chair and the chairs are placed back to back.
The glens are blindfolded, one at a time.
The seeker after fate makes her way blindly around the chairs, inspired by some dreamy waltz music played near by.
The music ceases suddenly in the middle of a bar. This is a signal for the player to occupy the chair nearest which she happens to be. The ribbon on the chair is supposed to give a broad hint as to the wearer's matrimonial destiny.

Wheat Cleaned
Six Times
"The equipment for wheat cleaning is as extensive and expensive as that for grinding purposes. The freedom of flour from dirt and bacteria shows in its appearance."
PROF. WM. JAGO,
of National Association Bakers.
Wheat specially selected for William Tell Flour is stored in hermetically sealed tanks, at Ansted & Burks' big mill. It is cleaned six times before grinding.
Everything—even the sewing of the bags—is done by clean, bright machinery.
Note how much sweeter William Tell is than other flours. This means wheat cleaning by the most complete equipment known to modern milling science.
William Tell Flour has the brilliant bloom such only Ohio wheat can make.

The fourth of July ball at Kilgore's hall was attended by a large crowd. A good time and delicious supper.

OXFORD.

Fourth of July Celebration.
The celebration began promptly at midnight Sunday night, and continued almost without intermission until nearly midnight Monday.
The day was all that one could ask for sport, and the rain of Saturday rendered the roads free from dust. The small boy and some larger ones had their inning from midnight until morning and everything that could make a noise was pressed into service. The school and church bells were rung and many people had to hunt for their furniture and wagons left out of doors over night.
At 6.30 a. m. the horribles made their appearance, headed by a band marched around the square and up High street. The parade was more than good, many of the turnouts and rigs being original, and the hits on the barber shops and motor boats were the most conspicuous.
The judges on the best get up were W. E. Gammon, Dr. Harry Farris and George Hazen. They awarded first prize $3, to Archie Smith's barber shop, second prize $2, to the band and third prize $1, to Chester McAllister.
At 9 a. m. the racing began on King street near the band stand. The first was over ten hurdles. Fred Glover won first money $2, Otto Holden second, $1. George Heslop was in this race and was pressing the leader hard, but caught on the ninth hurdle and fell.
The egg race was won by Rudolph Walker, Bean 2d, prizes 75c and 50c cents. The 50 yard sack race was won by Walter Bean, Thomas Lessaw 2d, prizes $1 and 50c cents.
The potato race was won by Rudolph Walker. Thomas Lessaw and Ray Dunbar, were tried for second, prizes $1 and 50c cents.
In the 100 yard run for boys aged 8 to 11, Quinn 1st, Guy Barker 2d, Charlie Smith 3d, prizes $1, 75c and 50c cents.
At 1.30 p. m. a change of base was made across the river to Pleasant street, and the first event on was a three legged race. It was won by Otto Holden and Walter Bean, Rudolph Walker and Willie Bean taking second money, $2 and $1.
In the 100 yard dash for boys 12 to 15 years of age, Guy Barker finished first, Fred Gammon second, Wallace Wood third, prizes $1.50, $1 and 50c cents.
In the 100 yard dash for girls, A. G. Hayes 3d, prizes $2, $1 and 75c cents.
In the pie eating contest Linwood Jackson devoured his pie in record time, A. Smith, Jr., 2d, prizes 75c and 50c cents.
In the mile run around the oval in school yard 15 laps to the mile was the most interesting race of the day. The starters were Sam Tripp, Otto Holden, Arthur Hayes, Weaver, Bowker and Faulkner. They all gave up the ghost except the winners of first and second money, Faulkner and Weaver. This pair looked it to run and could not have gone faster and farther had they been forced. Sam Tripp, who has talked about this race for a week, and could beat any man in town, run four laps and collapsed.
The basket ball game was thoroughly enjoyed by the crowd as well as the players, and the grassy turf in the school yard made an ideal spot to fall on.
The water carnival in the evening was grand. The shores on both sides of the outlet were lined with Japanese lanterns and each stump carried at least one, while the motor boats that whizzed back and forth were literally covered with lanterns and bright colored paper. It made a fitting climax to the day's sport, and was certainly the best Fourth of July celebration seen in Oxford for many years.

The usual Saturday night dances in Robinson hall was well patronized.
Blanch Smith and friend from Minot, attended the celebration at Oxford.
Henry Klous of Lawrence, Mass., is visiting his friend, John B. Robinson.
Mr. and Mrs. Leon Walker of Portland, spent the Fourth with Mr. Walker's parents.
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Seldom of Portland, are visiting with Mrs. Seldom's brother, Carroll Curtis.
Everett Cook went to Kineo, Wednesday. Everett has employment at the Mr. Kineo house for the season.
Mr. and Mrs. George Seldom of Portland, celebrated the Fourth with Mrs. Seldom's mother, Mrs. Battie Farnham.
Mr. and Mrs. Harry Russell of Auburn, visited with Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Walker, Saturday, Sunday and Monday.
The officers of Orange Lodge, K. of P. were installed Tuesday evening, by district deputy, A. M. Chase, of Bryant Pond.
Charles Bryant's farm buildings were burned at an early hour this morning. Cause of fire not known at present writing.
Mr. and Mrs. Leland Stone of Portland, are spending a ten days' vacation with Mrs. Stone's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Wardwell.
Stephen Jilison was in Boston last week and purchased a new auto. It is a slick article and fairly eats up the road between the G. T. station and the village.
Mr. and Mrs. D. Wardwell are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Wardwell. Mr. Wardwell has sold his property in Arrostook county and does not intend to return there.
The Camp Oxford boys played the town boys Saturday, and devoted them to the camp boys have a sick battery and after a few games are played it will take a pretty stiff team to beat them.
Mr. and Mrs. James Farrow of Norway, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Andrews of Augusta, were the guests during the week of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Hayes, the parents of these ladies.
Oxford division of Sons of Temperance held their regular meeting Thursday evening, July 6. The officers elected for the ensuing term were installed. The members present voted to suspend further meetings until September.
